DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

I believe that the people protesting do have the right to protest but the problem is the things people are protesting about and the way they are protesting. Usually throughout history protests were peaceful and no violence or vandalism was involved. But now people are protesting by blowing cars up death threats and violence and public damage to property and people think they have the right to destroy house and cars because its "protesting". People say that trump hates Mexicans and wants to separate them from us. Trump wants to protect the US in my opinion. President Obama banned immigration for a period and no one complained. But now since trump is doing it people say it's wrong and it's a violation of rights. I believe that we should not separate into two groups of people. We should support the president for what he does. You might not like him but don't start a useless protest and break houses just stay neutral and don't act violently for nothing. Its basically saying I want to go to jail.
